

THE ARMY ROLLS

Of the South Carolina Patriots Who Fought the Carolina Under

MARION, PICKENS AND SUMTER

A Document that Should Be of Great Interest to the Descendants of The Gallant Men Led by Partisan Leaders.

The Columbia State from week to week publishes the names of the soldiers in the Revolutionary war, as they have been culled from the quantity of loose documents discovered by Secretary of State Gantt in the State house. The State says when the work is finally done, it is hoped, "that a comparatively complete list of the men who fought under Marion, Pickens and Sumter during the closing years of the Revolution—that period which marked the bitterest fratricidal struggle that has taken place in an American State, and of brilliant and memorable achievements of sons of South Carolina—will be preserved. "Prior to the fall of Charleston, May 30, 1780, our State was removed from the centre of the conflict, and but for the brilliant victory of Fort Moultrie and a few desultory and almost bloodless invasions, engaged in little of the fighting; but during the closing years, when these men whose names are publishing were fighting, South Carolina bore the brunt of the conflict, and these men drove the British from our State and Cornwallis' army to Washington and Yorktown. But for their deeds, and without their help, Washington would have been like Davis and Lee in later years, the leader of an unsuccessful revolution, and South Carolina probably a British province." We shall publish these rolls from week to week as they appear in the State. The first installment follows:

Matthew Abbott, Capt. Anthony Coulter's company, Roebuck's regiment.

Solomon Abbott, Capt. Mapp's company, Roebuck's regiment.

William Abbott, Marion's brigade.

James Abernathy, Pickens's brigade.

Culbert Abels, forage master.

Geo. Abney, Pickens's brigade.

John Abney, Pickens's brigade.

Michael Abney, under Capt. John Wallace and Joseph Towles of Pickens's brigade.

Dr. Nathaniel Abney, physician attending wounded men of Brandon's regiment; also on duty in Sandhills under Capt. Watson.

Paul Abney, Pickens's brigade; also "making shoes for Samuel Hammond's regiment."

Samuel Abney, Jr., Pickens's brigade.

Dead at close of Revolution.

John Adams, first lieutenant and then captain, under Gen. Pickens.

James Abraham, Colonel Brandon's regiment.

William Acker, in Capt. Gideon Dupont's company (under Lieut. Geo. Hipp, the "Oakley Creek company of militia.")

Abel Achridge.

Alexander Adair, Pickens's brigade.

Isaac Adair, Pickens's brigade.

James Adair, Marion's brigade.

James Adair, Pickens's brigade; "recovered horses lost at Briar Creek."

Joseph Adair, commissary.

John Adair, Pickens's brigade.

Robert Adair, dead at close of Revolution.

William Adair, lieutenant Sixth regiment South Carolina Continental line. Also, adjutant Col. Lacey's regiment.

Andrew Adams, Second State troop.

Bryan Adams, dead at close of Revolution.

Drury Adams, Col. Leroy Hammond's regiment.

Geo. Adams, Capt. Samuel Adams' company.

Godfrey Adams, captain; on Briar Creek campaign; at Edisto under Gen. Henderson.

Howell Adams, Col. Brandon.

James Adams, Capt. Dunlap's company, Sumter's brigade.

James Adams, Pickens's brigade.

Col. Leroy Hammond's regiment.

Joel Adams, commissary, Captain Goodwin's company, Taylor's regiment.

John Adams, Pickens's brigade; also corporal S. C. line.

Joseph Adams, Capt. Martin's company, Sumter's brigade.

Littleberry Adams, Pickens's brigade.

Richard Adams, Continental line.

Robert Adams, Capt. Samuel Adams' company, Col. Lacey's regiment.

Thomas Adams, Pickens's brigade.

Samuel Adams, captain, Col. Lacey's regiment.

Thomas Adams.

William Adams, Pickens's brigade; Capt. Daniel Murphy's company; Col. Wm. Hill's regiment; also as lieutenant, also under Capt. Wm. Goodwin at Orangeburg, and under Lieut. Jacob Killingsworth and Reuben of Col. Taylor's regiment.

John Addison, Continental line.

Wm. Addis.

Richard Addis, under Capt. Benj. Jolley and Hughes of Roebuck's regiment.

Joseph Addison, Pickens's brigade.

John Addison.

James Addington, Waters' regiment.

James Addier.

John Adair, with Lacey at Houk's defeat.

Bartlett Adkins, Capt. James Jenkins' company, Col. Sam Benton's regiment, Marion's brigade.

James Addington, Brandon's regiment.

Geo. Agnew, under Lieut. Wm. Gray and Capt. Edward Martin.

Samuel Agnew.

George Ains, quartermaster, Major Maham.

Alex. Aiken, in Capt. Joseph Howe's company, was at Ferguson's defeat, and defeat of Sumter; under Gen. Henderson at the "Congarees" from June 1, '82, to July 11, '82; under Gen. Williamson at Briar Creek.

Archibald Aiken, under Capt. M. Bee and Mapp of Roebuck's regiment; Ezekiel Aiken, Brandon's regiment; also Capt. M. Bee and Mapp's company, Roebuck's regiment.

George Akins, Pickens's brigade.

John Aiken, in Brandon's regiment before fall of Charleston.

Joseph Akin, Marion's brigade.

Peter Akin, Capt. Robert Montgomery's company, Brandon's regiment.

William Aiken, Capt. Edward Martin's company, Col. R. Winn's regiment; also service as lieutenant.

Anthony Albervott.

Francis Albert, mariner on frigate South Carolina.

John Albright, Capt. Palmer's company of Brandon's regiment; also in Capt. Jolley and Hughes' company, Sumter.

James Alcorn, in Capt. Thompson's company, Sumter's brigade; lost horse at Briar creek; dead at close of Revolution.

Aaron Alexander, Capt. Wm. Baskin's company, Waters' regiment.

Asaph Alexander, under Capt. Norwood; also in Capt. Wm. Baskin's company.

Alexander Alexander, Sumter's brigade, also Pickens's.

Charles Alexander: commanding wagon at Col. Richardson's in 1781.

Isaac Alexander, sergeant, Polk's regiment, Sumter's brigade.

George Alexander, Capt. Norwood's company, Sumter's brigade.

James Alexander, Roebuck's regiment, Capt. Baskin's company.

John Alexander, at Four-Holes under Lieut. Winn; in Capt. John Henderson's company of Sumter's brigade; also in Roebuck's regiment; also lieutenant in the Spartan regiment of Col. John Thomas, Jr.; also quartermaster for Col. Kolb.

Joel Alexander, Capt. Martin's company, Sumter's brigade.

Joseph Alexander, Roebuck's regiment.

Matthew Alexander, Roebuck's regiment.

Nathaniel Alexander, sergeant under Sumter.

Rayne Alexander, under Capt. John Johnson and Womack.

William Alexander, under Capt. J. Pickens, Strain and Turk of Col. Robert Anderson's regiment, Pickens's brigade.

George Alcorn, at Orangeburg in Capt. Amos Davis company; also on Edisto expedition and under Lieut. Wm. Vaughan of Col. D. Hopkins' regiment.

Benj. Allen.

Charles Allen, Pickens's brigade.

James Allen, Lieut. John Bell's company, Pickens's brigade.

James Allen, Pickens's brigade.

Jeremiah Allen, lieutenant.

John Allen, Pickens's brigade.

Joel Allen, Pickens's brigade; dead at close of Revolution.

Josiah Allen, lieutenant, Pickens's brigade.

Robert Allen, Capt. Joseph Pickens's company, Pickens's brigade.

Robert Allen, Capt. Wilson's company, Pickens's brigade.

William Allen, Capt. Martin's company, Sumter's brigade; also Capt. Rosamond's company.

Alexander Allison, Capt. Venables' company, Col. Wm. Bratton's regiment, Sumter's brigade.

James Allison, Pickens's brigade.

Geo. Allison.

James Allison, Pickens's brigade.

James A. Allison, lieutenant, dead at close of Revolution.

Robert Allison, lieutenant.

Thomas Allison, Col. Wm. Hampton's regiment, Sumter's brigade.

William Allison, Pickens's brigade.

John Allison, captain.

John Alston, Capt. Gilbert Johnson's company, Col. Taylor's regiment; in camp, Frazier's, May, 1781.

John Ammons.

John Ammons, Third Continental regiment; also in militia.

Thomas Ammons, sergeant, Capt. Charnel Durham's company, Col. Winn's regiment; at Orangeburg in 1781, and Four-Hole bridge.

Aaron Anderson, Col. Waters' regiment.

Abel Anderson, Jr., Capt. Jere Williams' company, Waters' regiment; also in Capt. John Lindsay's company.

Abraham Anderson, Col. Waters' regiment.

Bailey Anderson, under Capt. Parsons and Bridges of Thomas' and Roebuck's regiments.

David Anderson, Roebuck's regiment; also quartermaster.

Drury Anderson, Roebuck's regiment.

Gabriel Anderson, Pickens's.

Capt. Henry Anderson, Col. Levi Casey's regiment, Pickens's brigade; Col. Casey certifies that "Henry Anderson did bear a captain's commission and commanded a militia company in my regiment. * * * He was murdered by the Tory party the last of October, 1783. Capt. Anderson's widow, Ruth, drew pay for his service. He also served in Waters' regiment."

Henry Anderson, Jr., Waters' regiment.

Jacob Anderson, Pickens's widow Rebekah.

James Anderson, Marion; also under Lieut. John Piercey.

James Anderson, Col. Lacey's regiment; lieutenant in Capt. Thos. Robins' company.

James Anderson, under Capt. Wardlaw in 79; private in Capt. Joseph Calhoun from 80 to '83; Pickens.

John Anderson, Roebuck's regiment.

John Anderson, Jr., Pickens.

John Anderson, Col. Wade Hampton's regiment.

Capt. John Anderson: captain in militia in 79; private in Capt. Robert Thomson's company.

Joshua Anderson, Roebuck's regiment.

Joseph Anderson, under Jacob Baxton of Harden's regiment; also Marion.

Kellis Anderson, Pickens; dead at close of Revolution.

Levi Anderson, Pickens.

Phillip Anderson, sergeant and lieutenant, Col. Brandon's regiment; lost horse at Blackstock battle.

Richard Anderson.

Col. Robert Anderson of Pickens's brigade: captain from Jan. 14, 1779, to May 12, 1780; then in various capacities until April 18, 1781, when he was made colonel of the Upper Ninety-Six regiment, which he commanded until March 30, 1783.

Robert Anderson, Sr., private and lieutenant under Pickens.

Robert Anderson, Jr., Pickens.

Samuel Anderson, Pickens.

Scarlet Anderson, Roebuck's regiment.

Capt. George Anderson of Chester county; widow, Margaret; 214 days in service as captain in Lower regiment, between Broad and Saluda rivers, and then put to death by Tories; was under Lieut. Col. John Lindsay.

Stephen Anderson, Pickens.

Thomas Anderson of Camden; (widow, Margaret) dead at close of Revolution.

David Andrews, at Augusta in 1779 under Col. H. Kirkland; with Sumter at Hanging Rock; under Col. Winn.

Drury Andrews, Waters' regiment.

Daniel Andrews, corporal, Second South Carolina Continental regiment.

Israel Andrews.

Jane Andrews, nurse in hospital.

John Andrews, adjutant, Col. Hicks and Col. Benton.

John Andrews, Col. Henry Hampton's regiment.

Owen Andrews, during 1781 under Sumter, then under Gen. Henderson.

John Anguish, matross, regiment artillery.

Elli Anahorn, lieutenant artillery.

Capt. Ezekiah Anthony, service prior to fall of Charleston.

John Anthony, Capt. Moore's company, Sumter.

John Anthony, Charleston battalion of Artillery.

Geo. Antley, Capt. Smith's company, Sumter.

Geo. Antse, Col. Taylor's regiment.

Robert Archer, Capt. John Steel's company.

Isaac Arlist, Pickens.

Anthony Argo, Pickens.

James Armer, Capt. Jas. Howe's company; July and August, 1780, under Sumter; on Briar Creek expedition under Williamson.

Arthur Armstrong, in 79 under Capt. Clinton and Holt.

Edward Armstrong, Col. Brandon.

James Armstrong, Jr., of Camden, Capt. Sadler's company.

James Armstrong, Jr., Nov., 1780, to Aug., 1781, under Maj. Gamble of Marion's brigade.

James Armstrong, 1780 at Fishdam; '81 at Sandy under Capt. Hanna and Joseph Steel; '82 at Edisto under Lieut. John Hanna; at Briar Creek in 79 under Williamson; also under Sumter at Congaree Port and Quarter House, and at Edisto under Henderson, in Capt. William Hanna's company.

John Armstrong, wagonmaster; captain from 1780 to 1781.

Edward Armstrong, Col. Brandon.

James Armstrong, Sr., Capt. Sadler's company; Marion.

James Armstrong, Jr., Capt. Waters' company, Sumter's regiment.

John Armstrong, wagonmaster in Col. Robert Goodwin's reg. 1779.

Martin Armstrong, Roebuck's regiment.

Isaac Ardis, Pickens.

John Ardy, Pickens.

Reddock Arnold, Pickens.

Benj. Arnold, second lieutenant, Col. Thos. Taylor's regiment.

Joshua Arnold, Casey's regiment, Pickens's brigade.

Reddick Arondale, Capt. McBee's company, Roebuck's regiment; Pickens's brigade.

William Arnold.

Joe Arthur.

James Arthur, in Capt. Geo. Neely's company, under Lieut. Wm. Broct.

John Ardis, Continental line.

James Ashberry, Pickens.

Philip Ashberry, Col. Brandon.

Lindley Ashberry, private, sergeant and lieutenant, Brandon's regiment.

Robert Ashe, on Georgia campaign in 1778; under Capt. Bratton in 1781.

Samuel Ashe, third company, Charleston, 1781.

William Ashe, Jr., during '79 under Capt. John McConnel; '81 under Capt. Hugh Bratton; '82 under Capt. James Wallace; was at Sumter's defeat.

William Ashe, Sr., during '78 under Capt. Bratton; '80 under Capt. Wallace; as sergeant under Lieut. Alex. Moore; '82 under Capt. Wallace and Bratton.

George Ashford, Capt. Pope's company, Col. Taylor's regiment.

Michael Ashford, Col. Brandon.

Wm. Ashley, Capt. Robertson's company, Taylor's regiment; was under Sumter at Congaree and at Biggins's Church.

John Ashley, "pack-horseman," Capt. Mapp's company, Roebuck's regiment.

Daniel Ayres, quartermaster.

Benj. Ashworth.

John Askew, Marion.

Alex. Asoph.

Geo. Askins, Pickens.

Elisha Atkins, Wagoner in Winn's regiment; lieutenant in Capt. John Watkins's company; probably killed at Sumter's defeat.

Joseph Atkins: authorized by Gov. Rutledge to impress cattle on Daniel's island and send to Charleston during investment of city.

Richard Atkins, under Lieut. Wm. Broce.

Samuel Atkins.

Ardwell Atkinson, Marion.

Frederick Atkinson, Marion.

Samuel Atterson, (Otterson?) Major.

Marmaduke Atkinson, Marion.

Timothy Atkinson, Pickens; probably killed.

Ralph Atmarr.

Wm. Atwood, Capt. John McGaw's company.

George Andoley, Capt. Jacob Rumph's company; under Lieut. Col. W. R. Thompson and Gen. Henderson.

Charles Aubrey, sergeant and lieutenant under Col. Brandon.

George Aubrey, adjutant of Col. Brandon's regiment; under command of Lieut. Col. Farr at Orangeburg, April 5, 1782, to May 15, 1782.

Capt. George Aubrey, Brandon's regiment; also private and lieutenant in Capt. Gavin Gordon's company.

Jesse Aubrey, Col. Brandon.

Philip Aubrey, Pickens; Brandon's regiment.

Samuel Aubrey, Col. Brandon.

John Aubrey.

Francis Aubrey, Capt. John Redmond's (Redmon's) company; under Col. Benj. Kilgore and Roebuck; also in Col. Casey's regiment.

John Austin, Pickens.

John Austin, South Carolina Continental line.

Capt. Nathaniel Austin, Pickens's brigade; quartermaster sergeant of the Little River regiment commanded by Col. James Williams from May 22 to Aug. 27, 1779; served under Pickens after fall of Charleston.

Thomas Austin, Col. Levi Casey's regiment, Pickens's brigade.

John Axon, lieutenant.

William Axon, Capt. Darrell's (or Dorrell's) company; captured by the British.

Elijah Avert, Capt. McBee's company, Roebuck's regiment.

Daniel Ayres, Col. John Marshall's regiment Oct. 1, 1780, to June 20, 1782.

Who He Was.

A dispatch to The State says H. Rudick is the name of the white man who was found in a box car in the Southern yards at Spartanburg over a week ago while the car was being unloaded of bales of cotton which caught on fire while being shipped through here from Mississippi to Gastonia. After the inquest the body was carried to a local undertaker's establishment where it was embalmed, and has since been kept awaiting identification. A jurymen at the inquest in searching in the overcoat pockets of deceased found in the lining a letter written in Russian characters and addressed to H. Rudick, 206 Delancy street, New York. He wrote a letter to that address and Wednesday received a reply from a friend of the dead man who states that deceased was a Pole and a Roman Catholic, and that he has a family in Poland. The writer will send money for the body to be buried decently by a Roman Catholic priest.

Committed Suicide.

Hill Terry, charged with the murder of his son-in-law, George Tate Bland, last September, committed suicide in his cell at Washington, N. C. Wednesday, by slitting his throat with a case knife that had been given him to use with his meals. His trial was in progress in the superior court.

THE NEXT STATE FAIR

Will Be Held in New Buildings on New Grounds.

FAIR LAST WEEK IN OCTOBER.

An Interesting Meeting of the South Carolina Fair Society Held in Columbia Last Week.

At the spring meeting of the South Carolina Fair Society in Columbia on Wednesday night. The Greater State Fair proposition was endorsed and commissioners were appointed to look to the transfer. The next fair will be held the last week in October in the new buildings on the new grounds at the State farm in the southern suburbs of the city. Two bills now pending in congress, the one ending annually in the sum of $20,000 a school of mining in each agricultural and mechanical college in the country and the other appropriating $15,000 annually for experiment stations, were unanimously endorsed. The executive committee elected new department superintendents. The following account of the proceedings is from The State:

The following new members were nominated and elected: Capt. H. H. Watkins, Anderson; Col. T. B. Butler, Gaffney; J. D. Lowman, Selwood; W. T. Martin, Columbia; Col. Edward McIver, Cheraw; Geo. Holliday, Conway; J. No. Fitzmaurice, Columbia; B. H. Rawls, Clemson College; E. L. Moore, Dillon; Knox Livingston, Bennettsville; Stevenson, Cheraw.

President Hamer spoke of the success of the last fair and said that the people were evidently ready to fall in line with the society for still greater fairs in the future.

BILLS IN CONGRESS ENDORSED.

Col. D. B. Duncan offered the following, which was adopted:

Whereas, two bills are now pending in the United States congress which are of special importance to the farmers and to all friends of agricultural education. One is a bill introduced by Mr. Adams of Wisconsin, making an appropriation of $15,000 a year to provide for the establishment of a school of research in subjects related to agriculture and for the special benefit of farmers.

The other bill was introduced by Mr. Mondell for the endowment of a school of mines and mining in connection with the agricultural and mechanical colleges of the United States and it carries an appropriation of $20,000 a year for each college. This bill provides for the following subjects shall be taught, and upon which experiments and research shall be conducted, not only for the benefit of the students attending the colleges, but also for general utility to the people of the State. Bulletins are to be issued.

The subjects are as follows: Mining machinery, with the application of electricity; mining engineering, mining exploitation, metallurgy, chemistry, geology, forestry, agricultural engineering, and road making; irrigation, engineering and the branches of learning pertaining to said subjects in order to the promotion of a liberal and practical education therein and to secure the most intelligent conservation, use and development of the country.

The two bills are now in the hands of the committee of the house—the first before the agricultural committee and the latter the committee of mines and mining.

It is needless to speak of the importance of these two bills to the farming interests of South Carolina, because the fact is carried on the face of the measures. Every legitimate effort therefore should be put forward by the friends of the farmers and those interested in the natural resources of the State, to cause the enactment of these bills into law.

It is resolved therefore, by the South Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical society that it is the opinion of these bodies that these bills should become law, and that the delegates here assembled strongly urge the representatives of the State in congress to cause the fact to be carried on the face of the measures. Every legitimate effort therefore should be put forward by the friends of the farmers and those interested in the natural resources of the State, to cause the enactment of these bills into law.

2nd. That the secretary be and is hereby instructed to transmit a copy of this preamble and resolution to the senators and representatives of this State in the United States congress.

Col. Newman spoke in favor of the resolution. The measures, he said, were before the committees, had been endorsed by the secretary of agriculture, the national convention of representatives from agricultural colleges and experimental stations and by practically every State in the union. The finance committee's report read by Mr. A. Gamewell La Motte showed a balance on hand Feb. 1, 1904, of $2,459.75. The receipts from sale of various kinds of tickets were $4,369.60. Mr. J. G. Mobley read a feeling tribute to the late Maj. Thomas W. Woodward.

NEW GROUND IN SOUTHERN SUBURBS.

Mr. Alex Guignard read the executive committee's steering committee report as to the Greater State Fair proposition. This was to the effect that the ways and means committee of council had agreed to recommend to council a resolution carrying out the plan of the joint Greater State Fair committee from the Columbia Chamber of Commerce and the executive committee of the fair society. This plan provides for the issuance of not more than $30,000 in 20 year 6 per cent. bonds to finance the change. One hundred acres of the State farm in the southern suburbs of the city was the site chosen at a cost of $15,000. This would be connected with the steam and electric railways and water could be gotten from the Olympia mill people. The old grounds for the purchase of the bonds.

The committee hopes to realize fully $20,000 for the old grounds. The society binds itself annually to retire at least two bonds, in denomination of not less than $500. The new property after being turned over to the society under the same reservation as the city now holds on the old grounds, will be held, if the society fails any year to hold a fair the property reverts to the city.

Mr. Guignard reported that the State fair had been chosen after a personal investigation by the whole executive committee of the other sites on which options are still held. The Fowles place can be had for $150 an

A GOOD BILL.

The State Senate Discusses at Length an Anti-Treating Law.

TO TREAT OR NOT TO TREAT.

It Would Be a Most Excellent Thing If Such a Law Were to Be Passed and Be Strictly Enforced.

"To treat or not to treat," was undoubtedly the question in the senate Tuesday. The bill introduced by Representative Doyle of Oconee, which was threshed to a mass of pulp in the house, was brought up after the calendar had been read, and after a good hour and a half had been devoted to its merits and demerits. The bill provides that on election days no one shall give away or sell liquors within three miles of the polls. This is manifestly to prevent repetition of the public scandals caused by the alleged wholesale distribution of "booze" during the general and municipal elections that have taken place in South Carolina within the last half a decade.

Senator Hay provoked the downpour of verbiage that ensued, by moving to accept the majority report. It seems that the committee on privileges and elections, with the exception of Senator Herndon, agreed to report the bill unfavorably. Senator Herndon, in whose county the bill originated, arose immediately to defend the measure, saying that men under the influence of liquor could not vote conscientiously, or if bribed were not fit to vote. Senator Standand also favored the bill, having promised some of his constituents that he would vote for it. He spoke of the amount of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill. "Liquor used in an election is always used by the worst candidates, who show by its use that they are unfit to hold office. Even though the statute were not rigidly enforced (though it should be) the moral effect of the State's condemnation of whiskey circulated in the interest of certain candidates at the last primary election, and cited this as an instance which showed the need for such a statute.

Senator Brice was another supporter of the bill.